

Collegiate 'Who's Who' Elects 18 Seniors

By Pete Mastrangelo

Father Galvin has announced that 18 seniors have been nominated for election in the publication "Who's Who among American Colleges and Universities."

The purpose of this organization is to provide an incentive, as well as recognition, to worthwhile students and to assist such students in their efforts to secure the best possible employment after graduation. The nomination is left up to the individual schools and may include seniors also. Loyola's selection was done by the submitting of the names of the top one-third of the senior class to faculty members of all departments. Each teacher had one vote per student that he thought deserved the honor. The Dean of Studies also had one vote. The quota of 18 students is limited by the "Who's Who" organization.

The basis of selection is scholarship, leadership, campus activities, and general service to the college. Those nominated are as follows:

Joe Bartek (B.S. chemistry) has been active in the Chem Club and tied for first in his class.

Soccer goalie Paul Cashour (BML history) is secretary of the senior class and writes for the GREYHOUND.

Jerald Ciekot (BS math) is the president of the Math Club and has been the sodality's secretary.

Coming from Towson Senior H.S., Bill Collins (ABML political science) has been active in the YR's. Ed Fischer (BS physics) is a member of the Scabbard and Blade and comes to Loyola from Poly. Also a member of the Scabbard and Blade is Bruce Hirshauer (ABLM history).

Charles Jenkins (BS physics-engineering) is a graduate of Poly. The President of the student body, Dennis Keating (ABML political science), is past Presidents of the SO, the YR's, the Debating Society, the IRC and Tau Kappa Alpha. He is also first in the class and member of ASN.

Juan Levy (BS physics-engineering) is a refugee from Cuba and was fought during the Bay of Pigs. The former GREYHOUND features editor, Walter Miles (ABML English) is now a member of the Literary Society.

Don Rohleder (ABML English) is the President of the senior class. The IGNIS editor, Stuart Schoenfeld, (ABML history), also writes for The GREYHOUND.

Bill Scholtes (ABML political science) is President of Alpha Sigma Nu and was President of his sophomore and junior classes.

Joe Spear (BS biology) is a member of the Mendel Biology Club. Dan Sullivan (BS chemistry) has done much chemical research.

The GREYHOUND's sports editor, Bernie Vondersmith (ABML English), is President of the Literary Society, Sports Information Director, and a member of ASN.

Stanley Weiss (BS math) is last year's Math Club President and is now the Chess Academy President.

Finally John Yox (BS interdepartmental) is Rifle Club Captain.

NSA Exam Here On December 12

By Al Stanek

The National Security Agency's Professional Qualification Test is scheduled to be administered on the Loyola Campus on Saturday, December 12. Any student who will receive a bachelor's degree by September, 1965 is eligible to take the test.

The Agency offers the college graduate many challenging careers, included in the variety of NSA duties. One of the many purposes of the examination is to determine the applicant's ingenuity, flexibility and ability to meet the complex demands which the agency encounters in its various programs.

Science majors should see Mr. Moritz for an appointment with an NSA representative. Other interested students should obtain registration forms from the Placement Director.

Peace Corps Holds On-Campus Exam

By Frank Torre

A special on-campus administration of the Peace Corps Placement Test will be given on Saturday, November 14 at 9:00 a.m. in Ruzicka Hall.

The arrangements for this Placement Test were completed in response to requests from some interested students. This test is non-competitive, and is only used in the placement of potential volunteers in areas best suited to their abilities.

For further information on the test and applications, contact Mrs. Vincent in the Placement Office.

Loyola IRC Rep Elected Chairman

The International Relations Club of Loyola College was well represented at the Middle Atlantic Regional Conference held this past weekend in New York City.

Peter Mastrangelo, the delegation leader, took a prominent role in the nominations for regional officers, while Mike Lardner and Skip Siewierski served as rapporteurs for the discussion periods.

Rudy Maurizio of St. Francis College was elected President.

The climax of the conference, as far as Loyola's delegation was concerned, was the election of Skip Siewierski of the Junior Class as Captial District Chairman. As chairman, he will be the coordinator of all IRC activities within Delaware, Maryland, Washington, D.C., and Puerto Rico.

Outstanding persons who addressed the conference on the topic: "The Struggle In The East: China vs. Japan," included Dr. Halpern and Mr. Overton of the Council on Foreign Relations, the Hon. Sunil Roy, Consul General of India to the U.S.; and Mr. Robert Barnett, Deputy Assistant Secretary for the Far Eastern Affairs of the U.S. Department of State.

Seminar To Feature Peter Sellers' Film

By John Caufield

The second presentation of the Loyola College Film Seminar for this season is the British satire "I'm All Right Jack."

The film will be shown next Friday evening, November 20, in Ruzicka Hall at 7:45 p.m. Admission is $.75 for non-subscribers.

The film stars Peter Sellers, Ian Carmichael, and Terry Thomas. Sellers plays a "bumbling union leader trying to cope with a carnivorous management." His performance won him the Best Actor award of the British Film Academy.

"OH MY GOD,"...exclaims John Nickle, "I didn't think I had that much much alcohol in my blood."

Dramatics Society To Sponsor Skits At Loyola Night

By Tom Hartke

This year the Masque and Rapier Dramatic Society of Loyola College will sponsor the annual production of Loyola Night on Wednesday, November 25, from 8:30 until 11 p.m. in Cohn Hall.

On Loyola Night, traditionally held on the evening before the Thanksgiving holidays, students have the opportunity to display their dramatic talents. Many of the skits poke fun at the faculty, administration, or fellow students.

Auditions for Loyola Night will be held on Sunday, November 22, and on Monday, November 23, at 7:30 p.m. both nights, in Cohn Hall.

Father James L. Conner, the moderator of Loyola Night this year, encourages anyone to audition who has a skit or a good idea for a skit.

Anyone may attend Loyola Night and there is a charge of $1 per person.

After the show there will be a dance with music provided by an orchestra.

ROTC Department Plans Military Ball

The Military Science Department has announced that November 21 is the date for this year's Military Ball.

The Scabbard and Blade Society, Company 1-11, sponsors the Ball, which is the only formal dance held on the Evergreen Campus.

Cadet Major Paul Rhode, commanding officer of the Scabbard and Blade, has stated that the ceremonies to take place during the Ball are the traditional ones that have been well-received in the past.

The music for the affair will be provided by Paul Martocci's twelve piece orchestra.

One of the most important functions of the Military Ball, according to Major Rhode, "is to build a spirit of unity and teamwork among the members of the Cadet Corps in a pleasant atmosphere as contrasted to the regulation and ceremony of the drill field."

Paul comments further that the dance "gives Loyola's underclassmen the opportunity to participate in a school sponsored formal activity."

The highlight of the evening is to be the introduction of the Company Queens to the Cadet Corps and the naming of the Brigade Queen. This ceremony will be followed by the promenade of the cadets and their dates and the reception of favors from the company Queens.

The gymnasium will be gaily decorated for the event with brightly colored curtains and flags of all the states.

Tickets may be purchased from senior Cadet Corps members. Tables may be reserved on the condition that a group of five students has made plans to sit together.

Engineers Schedule Special Force Film

The engineering majors of Loyola College will present a movie entitled, "Forces of Surface Tension."

The film will be shown in Maryland Hall, room 400 on November 18, at 11 a.m.

Mr. Klebe, instructor in Physics, has announced that this film is the third of a series to be shown this semester. The films treat topics related to fluid mechanics. The series seeks to supplement class lectures.

Orientation Staff Plans 2nd Session

By John White

The second session of the Freshman Orientation Program will take place on Wednesday, November 18 from 11-11:50 a.m. in Cohn Hall.

Six members of the Academy of Student Orientation and the Student Council comprise the Orientation Staff.

Father Galvin will speak first on the curriculum and the Q.P.A. system of marking.

Following Fr. Galvin, Bill Scholtes, Bob Johnston, and Paul Cashour will speak, calling the attention of freshmen to the tutoring service provided by Alpha Sigma Nu.

The library facilities and the art of writing research papers will be explained by Fr. Davish.

Finishing up the 50-minute program, Dennis Keating and Donald Rohleder will have a few words to say on the Spring elections.

Mr. Tom Dwyer To Give Lecture

By Mike Riley

Mr. Tom Dwyer, class of 1960, will return to Loyola to deliver a lecture entitled, "Research in Non-linear Magnetics," at 4 p.m. today in Maryland Hall, room 200.

Mr. Dwyer is Loyola's first graduate to have been awarded a fellowship by the National Science Foundation. He turned down this grant, however, in order to accept an International Telephone and Telegraph Fellowship. Mr. Dwyer is currently pursuing graduate study in physics at Princeton University.

Editorial

Loyola Night

Loyola Night, the annual display of student lunacy directed into constructive channels, will be held again this year.

Loyola Night is an honored tradition here at Evergreen and is usually met with a great deal of enthusiasm. It offers a perfect opportunity for students to direct good-natured jabs at their favorite instructors or administrators.

In the past, numerous imaginative skits and pranks have contributed to the success of the event.

Any student attending is bound to benefit from the humorous ways in which pent-up academic steam is let off. Admission is one dollar per person and all students and friends are welcome to attend. Everyone should be anxious to support this established tradition at the college, either as a participant or as a spectator.

Cheering, jeering and laughter will not be discouraged, and it will probably be impossible to prevent it. In closing, we would like to note that every dog has his day. Come and see every hound have his night.

Young Republicans Recognize LBJ's Win

By Jim Griffin

The Loyola College Young Republicans Club extends its congratulations to President Lyndon B. Johnson.

The Club recognizes the magnitude of the Democratic victory on all levels--local, state, and national.

But the Club does not view the defeat as the destruction of the Republican party, or even its conservative faction. Rather, Senator Barry Goldwater's defeat is interpreted as the result of two factors: first, the rejection of Goldwater's doctrine by a large part of the electorate, but also, second, misunderstanding of his doctrine by large numbers of people who may have voted for him, if they were fully informed.

The YR's recognizes the necessity of running a candidate in 1968 who has more popular appeal than Barry Goldwater.

But the Club can and will not reject its traditional Republican beliefs: that peaceful co-existence with an enemy dedicated to our destruction is utter folly, that increasing federal spending--sending money to Washington and receiving it back minus destination charges--is not logical, and that local government has been often unlawfully deprived of its rights of jurisdiction by growing intervention from Washington.

LC-NDM Committee Discusses Activities

By John O'Shea

The Loyola-Notre Dame Social Committee met last Thursday afternoon in the Rose Bowl on Notre Dame's campus.

Out of this meeting the Committee requests that each student complete a questionnaire regarding joint activities for the coming year.

These questionnaires will be in the lobby of the Student Center from 11 to 1 today, and during the same hours on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of next week. Students may indicate interest in any of the various combined activities suggested by the Committee, or they may make their own suggestions.

The Loyola half of this committee is under the direction of the Academy of Student Orientation. John O'Shea was recently appointed chairman of the Loyola members by Bob Diegelman, ASO President.

At the end of next week the Committee will examine the response to the questionnaires, and determine which activities to sponsor for Loyola and Notre Dame students.

A combined folk concert and Hunt Cup picnic are among the possible joint activities. Other suggestions include bowling, tennis, and bridge tournaments. Sledding and ice skating parties have been mentioned. A remote possibility might be a ski weekend trip.

Monthly movies at Notre Dame followed by mixers could be arranged. Joint attendance at lectures and at productions of Center Stage and the other theaters in Baltimore can also be scheduled. All of these suggestions are included on the questionnaire.

After next week students may make suggestions to any members of the Loyola-Notre Dame Committee. Loyola's representatives are: seniors Mike Duggan, Joe Marsiglia, Billy Morris and Brian Miller; juniors Dick Oare, Pete Ruane, Frank and Mike Sauer, and John O'Shea; and sophomores Dick Fleming, Joe Hooper, and Jim Moritz.

Observations:

Gorman Lecture Draws Few

By Stuart Schoenfeld

The Student Council, on October 16, by a vote of 8-4 voted "that, the Student Council go on record as being opposed to the present system of calling off activities during the Gorman Lecture Series; and that a letter be sent to the President of the College and Dean of Studies asking for an end to this policy...."

The administration has replied to this request with a firm "No." At one time there was only one activity period on Wednesday. The second activity period was added for the specific purpose of accommodating the Gorman Lecture Series.

The administration's position is that the periods which were originally set aside for the Gorman Lectures should be reserved for them when necessary.

Whether this policy is producing a larger audience at the Gorman Lectures is another matter. The attendance at both of the Gorman Lectures held during the Wednesday activity period numbered about forty. That's about five percent of the student body.

The attendance at the next Gorman Lecture will be significant. It is scheduled for a Tuesday night, November 24. The poet, Brother Antoninus, will be the speaker.

The response of the students to this lecture should be watched by both the Student Council and the administration. If more students attend this evening program of the Gorman Lecture Series than those during the activity period, the implications for the scheduling of future Gorman Lectures will be great.

The Watchdog?!

The Dog would like to convey to the student body communication from the English Department, Loyola College, dated September 1964: "Because the English Department believes that all freshmen have been e posed often enough to instruction in the mechanics of correct writing, effort will be made directly to teach spelling, punctuation, or grammar (sic)."

--Sick! Next we read: "This, however, does not indicate a lack of interest on the part of the department in correct writing." --Maybe a lack of dictionary? But to go on: "Students who know themselves to be deficient mechanics are urged to correct their deficiencies by reference to 'MODERN ENGLISH HANDBOOK,' and, if necessary, by doing the exercises therein." --Teachers who know themselves to be deficient mechanics are urged to correct their deficiencies by reference to THE WATCHDOG, and, if necessary, by taking instructions therefrom.

Later we read: "In order to assist the student in locating his individual weaknesses, the members of the English Department will annotate mechanical errors in written work." --In a spirit of mutual helpfulness THE WATCHDOG wishes to offer the same service to the members of the department.

Any faculty member "can thus eliminate the errors which have been pointed out to him." The DOG, however, insists that "If more than one mechanical error for each hundred words or fraction of a hundred words appears in a written assignment," the faculty "will rewrite the assignment with errors corrected." Unfortunately, "The rewritten paper can receive a grade no higher than D."

"THE WATCHDOG regrets this, but if a faculty member 'habitually commits more than the tolerated number of mechanical errors he will be required to perform extra work in the form of written drills aimed at helping him remedy his specific weaknesses. No extra credit will be given for this work, but it must be completed satisfactorily."

Although THE WATCHDOG admits that the English Department is within the tolerated limit of error, the following is proposed as a written test for those who wish to excel: Write sixty times--"The grammar school grammar teacher taught from a grammar book." "The grammar school grammar teacher taught from a grammar book." "The grammar school grammar teacher taught from a grammar book."

The Reviewing Stand
'House' Bonded 'Potato' Cast Deserves Award

By Robert Garvey

"Joy House," currently at the Hippodrome, is a James Bond movie without James Bond.

However, it is much more imaginative than any Bond movie to date, while successfully employing the humorous, sophisticated, anti-climatic dialogue that Bond has often used.

The suave hero, played by Alain Delon, is being pursued by a gangster whose wife Delon has seduced. He escapes from this hoodlum through some fantastic escapades that would make even agent 007 wince.

Our hero takes refuge in a mission on the Riviera where he is hired as a chauffeur by a rich widow (Lola Albright) and her younger cousin (Jane Fonda).

These two answers to a Frenchman's prayer take our hero to the "Joy House," which is a villa. At the villa things are really weird. It seems the widow's husband was murdered by her lover and the killer is still at large.

To reveal any more of the complicated plot or to disclose how the chauffeur and lover become involved would destroy the suspense of the movie.

Rene Clement, the director, has done an excellent job. He uses the best techniques of the "New Wave." Clement's only flaw is using a few "adult" scenes, which are not necessary to the plot.

By Tony Rash

The Mayfair's "One Potato, Two Potatoes" treats the delicate subject of interracial marriage.

The film opens in a courtroom where an already divorced man, Joe Cullen, is fighting to obtain the custody of his child. Employing the flashback, director Larry Peerce shows the events preceding the suit to reclaim the child.

Julie Cullen (Barbara Barrie), former wife of Joe Cullen (Richard Mulligan), had moved from Cleveland to a small town in Ohio after the divorce, taking her young daughter with her. On her new job she developed a casual relationship with a Negro, Frank Richards (Bernie Hamilton). She came to love him and was married to him. Julie and her daughter went to live on the farm owned by her husband's parents.

A second child, a boy, was born to the couple, and family life progressed uneventfully until Julie's first husband suddenly appeared at the farm and learns of his ex-wife's marriage to a Negro. Joe Cullen immediately entered suit for custody of his daughter, insisting that the atmosphere is detrimental to the child.

The performance of the relatively unknown cast is unforgettable.

For an inexpensive production, the sound and photography, especially in close-ups, are well done. The movie is worth a trip downtown.

The Readers' Right

Dear Sir:

As a faithful reader of The GREYHOUND, I am very much interested in the presentation of quality material. In general I am very pleased with the effort sustained week after week, and I even, I must admit, find cause for a few chuckles from your column, "The Watchdog."

I have, however found, in my stay here, that your comments seem to be, at times, quite pointed and quite restricted in their application.

It seems to me, and I emphasize the subjectivity, that the target of the barbed pen seem to suffer increasingly week after week.

In my opinion there can be a mature type of friendly jabbing which is done for humor but which has discipline and order. It is this type of humor which is most appreciated and, in fact is a cohesive force between the students and can act as a bridge between the faculty and the students.

Let me stress that I offer criticism, not as a faculty-critic but as an interested reader.

Music, Slaves At NDM Tonite

The Kymry Club of the College of Notre Dame is sponsoring a "Cafe a Go Go" and mixer tonight.

The music festival part will start at 8 p.m. Prior to this at 7:30 there will be a slave auction. This will be in the form of a raffle. Chances will be sold for 25 cents and the drawing will take place between the singing and the mixer.

Sophomore John White and senior Pete Mastrangelo will be auctioned off from Loyola. The Notre Dame "slaves" are Stephanie Meagher, Tucker Burns, Margo Miller, and Gail Rhodius.

Only boys may buy tickets on the girls and vice versa.

The admission to all the events is free. Refreshments will be served consisting of espresso coffee, mocha coffee, and doughnuts.

At the "Cafe a Go Go" there are three performers: Bob Sessions, Loyola's own "Craftsmen" headed by senior Charles Fisher, and Robin Rarold who plays at the Cellar Door in Washington.

In addition some of the Notre Dame girls will perform. Ingrid Barry and Sylvia Bellow will each do a set of numbers. The "Moonlighters," composed of Missy Diehl, Ann Gelinas, and Chris Healy, are also scheduled to entertain.

Council Loan Poll Results in 'Yes'; But Few Vote

The results of the poll concerning a proposed student loan fund, which was conducted last week through The GREYHOUND, indicate that 70% of those who voted were in favor of this idea.

However, only 11% of the student body bothered to vote, indicating a general disinterest on the part of the students.

The Student Council considered this matter further at its meeting on November 11.

It is likely that this proposal will be investigated more deeply and that the advice and help of the Management Club will be sought.

The capital from which the students can borrow small sums of money will probably come from the treasures of either the Student Council, the four classes, the Academy of Student Orientation, or from some affluent and willing activity. The Student Council intends to write to other schools to see how they have set up a petty loan system for their students. The final decision will be made later.

Towson State Victors In Loyola Invitational

By Fred Dumser

The twenty-five starters in the Invit.

Fred Donser stroins to overcome Mountie

Neighboring Towson State College Harriers won the Seventh Annual Loyola Invitational Cross-Country Meet last Saturday and in doing so set precedents in Loyola Invitational history.

Towson's winning total of twenty-one points was the lowest team total in the meet's history and Dennis Patton and Bob Stephans of Towson gave their college the distinction of being the only school in the invitational's history to place runners in both first and second places.

Patton won the 3.2 mi. event in 16:08.1 with Stephans second in 16:12. With John McKee and Tom Neidhart of Mount Saint Marys taking third and fourth place, respectively, Towson's Tigers clinched the team victory with fifth, sixth and seventh place finishes.

Towson State and Mount Saint Marys shared the first nine places. The first Hound runner to reach the tape was frosh Tom Wehner who finished fourteenth. Tom received a medal for his efforts as did the finishers from third to fifteenth. Patton and Stephans earned trophies.

Trophies were also awarded to the first place team, its coach, and the second place team. Medals were presented to the entire winning team.

The order of finish: Towson State with 21 points; Mt. St. Marys with 41; Loyola was third with 85 and Washington College and American U.

Pierce Starts As New Swim Coach

By Dan Whalen

This year Tim Pierce will take over as mentor of the Greyhound swimming team. Assuming the position of head coach which was vacated last June by Bill Klarner, Tim will have large flippers to fill.

During his fourteen year tenure as head coach, Bill Klarner amassed the enviable record of eight Mason-Dixon Conference Championships.

Tim assumes his new position with a solid background of swimming experience, both as a swimmer and coach.

He swam on the 1961 and 1962 Mason-Dixon Conference Champs' team.

Young, energetic, and redheaded, Tim is well versed in the technological and psychological aspects of physical conditioning.

One need only enter the pool or swimming locker room to find a vast array of literature relevant to the sport of swimming, which Tim has edited to highlight the more important aspects of a particular article.

Tim graduated from Loyola last June with a Bachelor of Science in English. During his Junior and Senior years, Tim managed the swimming team and acted ably as an unofficial assistant coach. His long hours of service then were greatly appreciated by the members of the team.

were fourth and fifth, respectively.

With the invitational on Saturday the Loyola Cross-Country season came to a close. Having posted a 2-5 mark for the year, the team has only one remaining meet, the Mason-Dixon Championship, which will be run at Bridgewater of Virginia on Nov. 21.

The championships at the end of each Cross-Country season decide both the conference team champion and the individual winners. All teams of both the northern and southern halves of the conference are represented.

At the present time, Tim is holding a full-time position as a teacher at Baltimore City College. He is also head of the Disciplinary Board at the same institution.

Evenings find Tim involved in graduate studies in education here at Loyola. The new swimming coach is engaged at present and Tim is considering December as the month when he may be married, if his plans proceed as he hopes.

Hound Booters Close Season On Winning Note

By Paul Cashour

Jim Bullington's freshman season as coach of the Loyola soccer team came to a close last Friday afternoon, and a fitting close it was as the Hound Footmen downed the Green Terrors of Western Maryland College 1-0.

Phil Biedronski:

charges the goalie

The season was a rough one for the young Greyhounds but they held up well. The team finished 4-8 overall and logged 2 and 7 in the Mason-Dixon Conference. The Hounds tasted their first victory in October when they overcame Catholic University of America by a score of 1-0.

Last Friday's game was a close one all the way. Although only one shot made it into the scorebook, one Loyola goal was called back because Loyola was off-sides in the second period of the first half.

Loyola controlled the offensive game for the most part and this is evidenced by the number of saves that the Western Maryland goalie had to make for his team. This goalie, Rick Coburn, stopped Loyola shots at the net on twelve occasions in the first half and on twenty-two in the second half. Jack Palmer finally broke the ice at 13:41 of the third period, when he wafted one into the top right corner of the net from the left side of his offensive field.

A sample of the remarkable game played by the Western Maryland goalie was the amazing stop he made of a penalty shot early in the game. He grabbed the ball on the fly and parallel to the ground. This is a rare feat.

The Greyhound goalie, Paul Cashour was no disadvantage to the Greyhound effort. He pulled down seven shots from his position in the net.

No one scored through the rest of the third period and the fourth period, and the Hounds were the victors for the fourth time in the season.

For some members of the team Friday marked the end of their first season in Loyola's inter-collegiate activity, but for others the Western Maryland game marked the end of a four year career. Paul Cashour, Vince Petroniero, Jack Palmer, and Harry Bregel finished their college soccer careers, having served for four years as starters.

There were two games played last week, and two sophomore teams emerged the victors.

The Harmon All-Stars got back on winning ways by defeating the Crunchers 7-6. After a scoreless hard-played first-half, the All-Stars scored in the second half. Schey scored the touchdown for the All-Stars, and Berny Rice added the winning extra point. Dick Morgan was the lone scorer for the losing Crunchers.

In a battle between one gamblers, the Ferns won a come-from-behind victory over the Flops 19-12.

Bob Rossi readies to shoot

Bob Link threw two touchdown passes in the first half, one each to Jim Kane and Joe Doyle. The Ferns stayed close in the first half, but Jack Cuneo hit Tom Kelly for a touchdown.

In the second half the sophomore Ferns were in complete control of the game. The left-handed Cuneo led his team to two more touchdowns. He first threw a scoring pass to John Miller, and then hit Tim Martin for the extra point to put the Ferns out in front. Cuneo again hit Kelly for another touchdown to give the victory to the Ferns.

After today's results there will only six teams remaining in the competition for the intramural championship.

J.V.: 2-0

By Bernie Vondersmith, Sports Editor

At this time twenty-five years ago, the Greyhounds were feverishly preparing for another basketball season under the mentorship of own Lefty Reitz.

The sports page of the October 27 issue of that year's GREYHOUND announced: "Support Basketball. Buy A.A. books from the athletic department. CHAMPIONSHIP SEASON AHEAD." This is a far cry from the situation we now enjoy at Loyola. The students of Loyola no longer have to pay for sports entertainment but receive free admission to all home contests. Season booklets are now available in the athletic department upon presentation of a valid Loyola identification card.

On October 18, 1939, about forty hopefuls answered the call of Lefty Reitz to try out for the team. In addition to the returning letterman from the 1938 team, there were nineteen nervous freshmen reporting for initial practice.

The schedule that year was reputed to be the toughest in history. Twenty-one games were played that season. According to the GREYHOUND of 1939, "The Greyhounds are definitely on the up-grade, and if they proceed in downing quintets of the caliber of Georgetown, Catholic, Marshall, and C.C.N.Y., national recognition will not be long for coming." This was the spirit of optimism which prevailed in October 1939, and when the basketball season came to a close, the Hounds were on top of the league.

The 1939 basketball season marked Lefty Reitz's second year as Loyola College basketball coach and first year as Athletic Director. Since then, Lefty has built up one of the finest athletic programs in Maryland. In 1961 he retired from the basketball limelight and handed over the reins to Nap Doherty, who is beginning his fourth season as Hound basketball coach.
